STORY TIME: By Jamie

Monkey bread?

Whilst travelling Italy this year Lena and I had come across this really cool bakery in one of the off-roads in Siena. Here the menu offered monkey bread, this being something I had not tried out , yet alone even heard of.

My first thoughts were, “is monkey bread made of monkeys or is it the kind of bread monkeys are fed”. Lena found this extremely funny and couldnt contain herself. To this day she is convinced that I am not from this planet and my reactions are always more dramatic than it should be.

OUR STORY

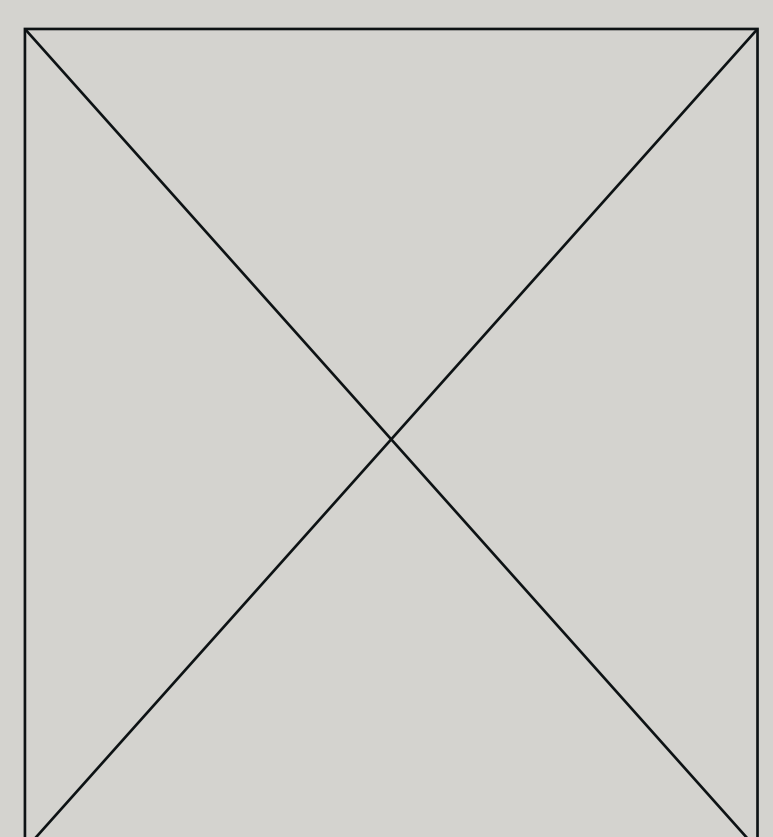

“Jamie and Lena met on University where they both had studied business management. It was love at first sight for them as cliché as this may sound. But ever since meeting, Jamie and Lena had never left the honeymoon phase and it's always been great for them. They started a business together and have grown ever since, business-wise and in every other aspect. Travelling had always been a common interest between the two and once they were able to, they decided to travel all over, as far as they could and still can. Hence the start of Explorer Tribe.”
